

Yoga Teacher RESUME

RESOURCE CHECKLIST

GENERAL

- Spell check, spell check, spell check.
- Have someone else with a good eye look it over before sending.

COVER LETTER

Include everything that you've discovered in your research about the space

- Whether you have had any personal contact with owner or manager
- Whether you've taken classes
- Why you think you would be a good fit - include relevant training.
- When you are available to teach

RESUME

- Use a professional template (do not use the standard Word template). You can even use Canva to put something together that will really stand out
- Your file name should be your name plus resume (hiring managers get a lot of resumes named resume.doc)
- Save your resume as a PDF so that it holds its formatting.
- Include your relevant education (significant trainings) and experience teaching.
- Do not include every workshop you have ever taken or classes that only lasted a month or two.

REFERENCES

- Get permission to use someone as a reference and give them a heads up when you apply for a job so they can be expecting an inquiry.
- Double check contact info each time you apply for a job
- Some good people to ask are teachers in your training program and past or employers.
- If you can't get a yoga employer, then a reference from another employer is still worth something in terms of vouching for your character and work ethic
